[Exhausted after the dangerous obstacles they mer during the day they decided to set camp so that they could get some rest. But the presence of evil floated like fog in the forest, and they were aware of that they were being watched from the shadows. Even so our friends felt that this was a good place to rest: so the sorcerer blessed the camp with a protection spell. And when the bard began to sing, peace sank down over the exhausted heroes.]

Far in the forest we all stay together
To rest by the fire cause the nightfall has come And while the stars are shining from the sky far above us
We all fall asleep from the tone of our bard

Oh, while he's playing his song, he sings about the druids and the powers they hold

He sings of the great men who lived long before us Warriors with knowledge in the riddle of steel Stories about dragons and powerful sorcerers Adventures we seek, adventures we know

Oh, our journey's so long, but we all know this is where we belong

Through rain and through storms, through darkness
and cold
Like a wind our faith moves us on
and cold
Like a wind our faith moves us on

[solo Fredrik]

Oh, our journey's so long, but we all know this
is where we belong

Through rain and through storms, through darkness
