This is a story 'bout yourself
And I'd like to tell it to you
There was a child with big brown eyes
Which became dim and blind by the truth
When he was older he lost his mind in a vague world of heroin
He gave a fuck about his life
And he don't fulfill one of his dreams
Don't you remember
What your father said when you were young
Life ain't forever
And you shouldn't wait till it is gone

One day a girl was by his side
And she loved him more than her life
But she couldn't break through this wall
Behind that he used to hide
He lost the faith in fortune and love
Just when she left him crying at all
This was the darkest day of his life
But it was like an old veil that falls

Don't you remember
What your father said when you were young
Life ain't forever
And you shouldn't wait till it is gone

You are the guys who changed his life
And you earned a place inside my mind
The mania put her arms 'round you
But now you learned to face the truth
Enjoy the best days of your life
Enjoy the best days of your life

Today your mind is free and save
And you found a way through this pain
You solved your problems on your own
And you won this round of the game
But don't forget all the shame and fear
When your life was so graceless to you
You should remember it's hard

Just to learn what's a lie and what's true

Don't you remember

What your father said when you were young

Life ain't forever

And you shouldn't wait till it is gone
