This is a very interesting situation

I sense a gradual loss of communication

Don't you think I can see you're changing on me

You're heading into a completely new direction

And I am having trouble making the adaptation

Don't you think I can see you're changing on me

Let's get back together

Let's get back forever

If I may be so bold by making a suggestion

Please ask yourself why you are making this transition

Don't you think I can see, you're changing on me

Every time I think of us

I just want to make it how it was

Before we had much more

When I think of me and you

I just can't believe that we are through

I ignore the fact that you closed the door

When I think back, we had a beautiful relationship

But I see the future, what's there for me is devastation from you

Don't you think I can see, you're changing on me
