You've been a juvenile
With a dolphin smile
With no elbow room
With your body in bloom
You've had your little backyard
Protected by big walls
You didn't dare look over
'Cause you've been too small
Now you're finally sixteen
And you feelin' old
But they won't believe
That you got a soul
'Cause you're only sixteen
And you're feeling real
But you can't seem to cop a feel
Why do they have to force us
Through this metamorphose
Little butterfly
No matter how you try
You'll be segregated
You're gonna be closed off

You're callow and you're green

'Cause you're caught between

You're only sixteen

Try to cross the line

But your little wings are intertwined

You're only sixteen

And you're such a tease

And there's nothing you do

That can really please

"These children

They're not really bad most of them

They're just products

Of rotten neighborhoods

And bad family situations"

You know you can't forsake it

So sit back and take it

You see you're just not ripe

So don't try and fight that

You're only sixteen

You wana catch a peek

But they look at you

Like you're such a freak

Well you're only sixteen

With a lot to say

But they won't give you

The time of day

You're only sixteen!

You're only sixteen!

You're just sixteen!!

You poor little thing
