Take this day and write it down
The great green grass, the great white clouds
And fold it carefully

Drive your car to where things are
To where that pond could get you saved
And swim there recklessly

For all the great long afternoon
In the dark if it's raining, or light like it's June
In the sky, where the sky waits for the moon

I'll be at home when you get here
The great green porch in the evening air
To kiss you recklessly

For all the great long afternoon
In the dark if it's raining, or light like it's June
In the sky, where the sky waits for the moon
