"Daylight In the City"

It's the start of a bright new day as the light finds its way through the curtains at the end of my night.
I'm alive in a city of dead people rising for work...
And as they ride through the cycle, the machine
revving up,
I feel a little suicidal, just not high enough to jump.

Oh who am I kidding now?
My plan to die young, somehow is just a memory now.
It's daylight in the city, "just hold me,"

she said, "it's been a long night in the city, just hold me, hold me..."

I had an old friend who said I should run
like today is the last of my sick, sorry little life.
As I stared into my own eyes in the mirror by my bed, that's when I realized nobody ever told me that, I'm just afraid of dying.
She told me everything is gonna be all right -
everything is gonna be just fine
