You never worship, you never worship your life.
You never worship, you never worship your life.
You never worship, you never worship your life.
You never worship, you never worship your life.

You never worship, you never worship your life.
You never worship, you never worship your life.

All the while you're standing still, you all reach in the past.
You won't let the good times in, if you do, you make sure they won't last.
Can't you see the lights they're shining to lead you
back again?
My heartbeats can be a silver lining, just listen well to
them.

You never worship, you never worship your life.
You never worship, you never worship your life.

Never worship your life.

All the while you're standing still, you all reach in the
past.
You won't let the good times in, if you do you make
sure they won't last.
Can't you see the lights they're shining to lead you
back again?
My heartbeats can be a silver lining, just listen well to
them.

They will worship, they will worship your life.
They will worship, they will worship your life.
They will worship, they will worship your life.
They will worship, they will worship your life.
They will worship your life.
