Walking into a room full of strangers,
Someone grabs my hand and pulls me away,
From all danger,
Someone whispers in my ear,
Sweet things that a lot of girls want to hear.

Like a movie everything is unclear,
Don't know what's gonna happen,
While I'm here,
No one understands the pain,
That I feel.

Someone softly touches my arm,
Breath upon my neck and,
I'm locked inside his charm,
Fingers grip tighter around my waist,
I am trapped in a warm embrace.

Falling down faster again,
He calls my name and says,
I am your only friend,
Is this the boy I have been dreaming of?
Or the man I'm afraid he will become.

Only the test of time,
Can break the spell I'm in,
His blue eyes speak an un-piercing melody,
And he smiles and says you are full of modesty.

Someone softly touches my arm,
Breath upon my neck and,
I'm locked inside his charm,
Fingers grip tighter around my waist,
I am trapped in a warm embrace.

Places I don't want to be,
I cry out because he is trying to shape me,
No one can touch me,
No one can hurt me because of my,
Boundary,
No matter what I do,

I still feel him somewhere in my room.

Someone softly touches my arm,
Breath upon my neck and,
I'm locked inside his charm,
Fingers grip tighter around my waist,
I am trapped in a warm embrace.
I can't help it I have got to give in.
