Follow me home, I need a change
From these blurred lines and all these words I know
I need you back, I need your arms around me please so
I don't fall

I heard your voice, so long before
Your strength remained after the switch was flipped
But please come back, I need your arms around me please so I don't fall

From the beginning we searched for the end
From the beginning once again
Somehow I know I'll find you there

From the beginning we searched for the end
From the beginning once again
Wherever that may be

Cut at the joint, I fall apart
To feel you this close and not just take hold
And then look back and see you not there
And feel you that close and not just let go

To hear your voice, to feel your warmth
And felt you that close and I just let go
And watch you leave with no goodbye
And feel you that close and not just take hold

From the beginning we searched for the end
From the beginning once again
Somehow I know I'll find you there

From the beginning we searched for the end
From the beginning once again
Wherever that may be

From the beginning we searched for the end
From the beginning once again
From the beginning we searched for the end
From the beginning once again
From the beginning we searched for the end
From the beginning once again

From the beginning we searched for the end
From the beginning once again
Somehow I know I'll find you there

From the beginning we searched for the end
From the beginning once again
Wherever that may be

From the beginning we searched for the end
From the beginning once again
