With Love Again
BOB OLDREIVE & JOE LINDLEY

I hope the wind is warm, and your beach is wide
As you walk to the rhythm of the coming tide
And all the stars are shining, just like so many friends
Here tonight, you will go, with love again

There are lights out in the valley, as you climb the hill
And songbirds to hear, when you're standing still
You will know peace as He holds you in his hand
Here tonight, you will go, with love again

Now our paths have changed, and you must find your way
So we will send our love tonight, and walk with you someday
I hope your sails are full, and your storms are gone
And dolphins swim beside you as you sail on Shores that seemed so distant are now within your hand
Here tonight, you will go, with love again

Now our paths have changed, and you must find your way
So we will send our love tonight, and walk with you someday
You are not alone, even as we stay
Souls that you have known before will walk with you this day
Will walk with you this day, will walk with you this day
Will walk with you this day, we'll walk with you someday
