I never thought I'd say that it's alright
But this feeling of remorse is all I've got
I never thought I'd say that it' alright

When I was a poor boy my father said to me that if you want to live in life you've got to live it free But as time went by before my eyes the sound of soundness washed away
And until I reminisced today I was blinded by the rage

I never thought I'd say that it's alright
But this feeling of remorse is all I've got
I never thought I'd say that it' alright

Looking in the looking glass
I'm seeing trough your soul
And everytime I hesitate I'm feeling kind of cold
And as time goes by I slowly sigh so please make up your mind
You breathe so very heavily as you slowly stepping down

I never thought I'd say that it's alright
But this feeling of remorse is all I've got
I never thought I'd say that it' alright
