We wake up different, rifle through our dreams

Another placid day, ripples at the seams

Do you think I bow out cause I think you're right?

Or cause I don't wanna fight?

So tangle-minded then so becalmed

It's all so subway-grim and then it's gone

Do you think I bow out cause I think you're right?

Or cause I don't wanna fight?

We get so weary, taking fish off hooks

It's not as effortless as it may look

Do you think I bow out cause I think you're right?

Or cause I don't wanna fight?

We lay down seething, smell our pillows burn

And drift off to the place where you'd think we'd learn

Do you think I bow out cause I think you're right?

Or cause I don't wanna fight?

I said, "I give
