We don't talk about the weather,
But I'm sure she'll feel much better once a colder season comes.
And I mean this as a compliment,
My baby is a lot of things,
I had never, ever dreamed that I would want.

And I said she's so, she's so right for,
Someone who don't know, what to live a life for.

It's like when I wrap my hands around her waist and I'm caught up in that pretty face,
She's standing up on tiptoes,
Just to kiss me in the sun.
I said, "Baby, when I sleep at night, I dream your pillow's next to mine, 'cause every day when you're away, I'm missing you, I've got to say,"

She's so, she's so right for,
Someone who don't know, what to live a life for.

I know, when she goes,
The wind don't smell as sweet without her.
When she goes, when she goes,
I can barely breathe without her.

She's so, she's so right for,
Someone who don't know, what to live a life for.
