looking out on my roof last night woken up from a dream i saw a typhoon coming in close bringing the clouds down to the sea making the world look gray and alone taking all light from my view keeping everyone in and keeping me here with you around you now, i can't sleep no more baby around you still, don't want to leave yet woken up from a dream last night somewhere lost in war i couldn't feel my feet or hands i didn't feel right anymore i knew there i'd die alone with no one to reach to but an angel came down and brought me back to you i'd rather leave this world forever baby than let life go the way it's going watching an old fight film last night Ray Mancini vs. Duk Koo Kim the boy from Seoul was hanging in good but the pounding took to him and there in the square he lay alone without face without crown and the angel who looked upon never came down

you never know what day could pick you baby out of the air, out of nowhere come to me once more my love show me love i've never known sing to me once more my love words from your younger years sing to me once more my love songs that i love to hear birds gather 'round my window fly with everything i love about the day flowers, blue and gold and orange rise with everything i love about the day walk with me down these strange streets how have we come to be here so kind are all these people how have we come to know them
