

Janiva Magness

"Air"

Visit "Air" on MotoLyrics.com

Like air before a summer storm, the world around me
opens.
And I see you as clear as if you never had been broken.
Could centuries go by like this, without a single kiss?
You're just as lovely as before, without a single kiss.
It's you whose feet are on the stairs, and your breath
stirs the curtains.
I shiver as you pass through me, the world around me
opens.
Could centuries go by like this, without a single kiss?
You're just as lovely as before, without a single kiss.
Wildflowers bend without a wind, and you are by my side.
Though I can never feel your hands, I still can hear your sighs.
Could centuries go by like this, without a single kiss?
You're just as lovely as before, without a single kiss.
Without a single kiss, without a single kiss...

Visit Janiva Magness page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.