It might as well be a million years until we meet again.
It might as well be a million years until we meet again.
You never get older, you stay just the same.
You never will change again.
My heart is full of a million tears until we meet again.
A heart is full of a million tears when two must part so soon.
You never get older, you stay just the same.
You never can change again.
I'd like to walk right up to your door, see what you have to tell.
You have no door, nor no telephone that I can ever call.
How can I get older when you stay just the same? I hope we will meet again.
You never get older, you stay just the same. I hope we will meet again...
