One, two, three

Yes, I've been waitin', but you just don't come around
You've been droppin' in on everyone all over town
Say what you like, but you just don't know your place
And everywhere we go, people seem to know your face

You've been checkin' out the scene, every single night Never knowing where you've been, you say, "It's alright"

I placed all my faith in you, then you let me down
Everything I said is true, but you don't hear a sound
Yeah you ought to be ashamed, but you don't accept the blame

They said it was too late, for your love
They said it was too late, you're gonna go
They said I was too late, for your love
They said I was too late, you're gonna go

You never can tell with friends
You never can tell with, you never can tell with
You never can tell with friends
You never can tell with, you never can tell with

Yes, every now and then, my mind turns things around
And I believe it's true, that our love can still be found
Just one thing I care about, from sea to shining sea
And you know that's the love you give, the love you give to me

You've been checkin' out the scene, every single night Never knowing where you've been, you say, "It's
alright"
I placed all my faith in you, then you let me down
Everything I said is true, but you don't hear a sound
Yeah you ought to be ashamed, but you don't accept
the blame

They said it was too late, for your love
They said it was too late, you're gonna go
They said I've been too late, for your love

They said it was too late, you're gonna go

You never can tell with friends

You never can tell with, you never can tell with

You never can tell with friends

You never can tell with, you never can tell with

You never can tell with friends
