Here's a little something I learned about you it takes more than science to uncover the truth about the time and space that you occupy No one else can fit in your shoes and that's fine by me cause you're a dream come true and whatever we face, I know that we'll get by

Einstein never explained it like this
But you're relative to me and my relatives
Like a star flashing across the sky
I look up to you and I wonder why you shine on me
Out of all the other fish in the sea

It's Physics for two, me and you You're space warped my time and I'm cruisin' at the speed of light where time stands still This love ain't no theory, it's no illusion

We can try to work it out with geometry and it's got a bit to do with our chemistry but the way I'm feeling started with you and it's physics, physics for two

Some nights I look up at the stars A sense of wonder fills my heart when I think "Hey, we're part of this place!"
And all the neat things there are to do My reaction is multiplied by two when I see the wonder on your face

Einstein never explained it like this
Like a star flashing across the sky
I look up to you and I wonder why you shine on me
Out of all the other fish in the sea

(chorus)

Like an island in the sea there's just you and me Drifting through a crazy world

Will you be my girl?

I don't care about the worm holes or the bending of space You're my here and now and we're two, in one place
