(Mickey Newbury)

Doggone my soul, how I love them old songs
They were a comfort to me when I was alone
The dancing stops but the music goes on
Doggone my soul, how I love them old songs/

Oh, when I hear that double eagle guitar
It makes me think how trouble free, girl we are
There was a time I spent my nights in a bar
Playing that old jukebox until the honky tonky locked up.

Doggone my mind just won't leave me alone
Keeps on reminding me I'm so far from home
Those heart breaking, aching eggs and bacon, country songs
They take me back to hardwood floors,
Out door johns and Mason jars.

It's all I can do to believe that it's gone
That hard knocking rock and rolling life that I've known
But the dancing is over and the music must go on Doggone my soul, how I love them old songs
How I love them old songs.
