(Jerry Crutchfield - Buck Maxwell)

I bought a ticket on a train
My suitcase has been packed
Tonight I'm walking out that door
And I won't be coming back.

You think that I can't live
Without your love but you don't know
It's just my feet that's walking out
My heart left long ago.

You say I'm breaking up our home
You're asking me to stay
But we've been all through this before
And you're just a little late.

Your cheating heart has hurt me
More than you will ever know
It's just my feet that's walking out
My heart left long ago.

The times that I walked out
Before your teardrops brought me back
But I've never had the tickets bought
Or had my suitcase packed.

The tears are in your eyes again
But this time you don't know
It's just my feet that's walking out
My heart left long ago.

You say I'm breaking up our home
You're asking me to wait
But we've been all through this before
And you're just a little late.

It's just my feet that's walking out
My heart left long ago...
