(James O'Gwynn - Eddie Hollowell)

I could forget the love I gave you
The way I used to hold you tight
But you're too easy to remember
That's why I'm all alone at night.

I should forget the arms that held me
Because you're proud of someone new
But you're too easy to remember
And I can't stop my loving you.

You might not need these lips that kissed you
But what am I supposed to do
When you're too easy to remember
I just can't help but think of you.

--- Instrumental ---

You might not need these lips that kissed you
But what am I supposed to do
When you're too easy to remember
I just can't help but think of you...
