There's a time for love and a time for healing
Can't go back and undo what's been done
Word of mouth, time is revealing
Just how far we've let this kingdom come
Hand in hand we're finding our way
And today is just tomorrow's yesterday

Some would die for you, some will lie to you
There's all kinds of people in this world
Turn the world around, tear the borders down
There's all kinds of people in this world

The kiss of life and the hand of fate
A boy grows up into his father's son
And he learns to love, been taught to hate
To carry on the way it has been done
All our lives it's debts to repay
Maybe someday we can put the past away

Some would die for you, some will lie to you
There's all kinds of people in this world
Turn the world around, tear the borders down
There's all kinds of people in this world
Some would die for you, some will lie to you
There's all kinds of people in this world
Put your fear away, find a better way
There's all kinds of people in this world

In a moment things can change
One look behind and it's never the same
