There's a fog upon the skyline
Clouds my view
And the city's cold and lonely
Without you

And so I set out upon the highway
Bound to leave your memory behind
And the prairie wind, it chills me to my bone
And the heart's a lonely hunter all alone

And the fields are rollin? softly
Across the plane
And my eyes can see forever
Through the pourin? rain

I could have sworn I heard your sweet voice callin?
'Bout a mile past the county line
Oh, it was only just an echo in my soul
And the heart's a lonely hunter all alone

Drivin? past the state line
Change my state of mind
Suddenly a free born man

Headin? to a small town turn
Turn my life around, no one has to understand
Without a past to tie me to my shadow
And to the last, I'll run my life alone, alone

Now the sun is beatin? softly on my skin
And at last I feel emotion, beating deep within
And for the first time I know for certain
I can leave that girl behind

And I cast a giant shadow as I roam
And the heart's a lonely hunter
Heart's a lonely hunter
The heart's a lonely hunter all alone

All alone
When you're all alone
All alone

When you're all alone
