looking for his blanket to face the night he wants his covers tucked in tight he's got his dinosaur in his arms and his footed pajamas he jumps on the couch like a maniac why can't he just be always three for me he's gonna be the man i want him to be he's out the door in flash and never looking back and the clock just keeps on ticking on look at the big boy now he's off to school he's got his bookbag and his golden rule got his basketball for break kiss for mom and daddy too why can't he always be six for me

and the clock just keeps on ticking on i was coaching his team on the day of his first touchdown and i watched him celebrate the games are so much fun and the uniforms is supercold the backyard is way too small and the clock just keeps ticking on
