Where there is love there is a peace
And in the cages that bind the bitter heart, it is release
Hold it close to your chest, let it move and let it rest
For it is here to set your mind at ease
Where there is love there is a peace

Where there is hope there is a dream
To rise above, to remit and to redeem
To go back, to go where there's no hurt or anger there
To find the song that you once could sing
Where there is hope there is a dream

Where there is faith there is a chance
To alter the course and fight the winds of circumstance
Not to scar but mend, not to break but to bend
And not to know but to understand

Where there is faith, yeah, there is a chance
Where there is hope there is a dream
Where there is love there is a peace
