

Eames Era, The "Got Your Note"

Visit "Got Your Note" on MotoLyrics.com

I read your note before you had a chance to write it Don't worry what it said you sounded like a poet
And I was so impressed by your extensive vocabulary Words you put in every paragraph
And I'll admit you said some things you didn't mean to But how could you have known when the words ran into you
So total line and try to find the reasons why you So happy illusions they wear their mascots made of A mix of myth and story thrown out of a paper cup They're just excuses laced by parents who get their kids
To bed before the clock touches his 11
And everyone does just what they ought to
And no one asks because their much polite not to So total line and try to find the reasons why you won't Mary I thought you'd like to know, the boy you met after the show was really name was Joe
And Reno wants a gig that's right around the corner
And we'll go because we know just what to order
So total line and try to find the reasons why you don't Tommy I thought you'd like to know, the girl you met after the show was really name was

Visit Eames Era, The page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.