There was something they said to you
I thought about it every day since you're gone
And I hate what they gave to you
But a little bit of poison still makes you strong

And you're a little bit more than I ever did see
Now you're bigger than life, but you'll never be free
There's a noise in your head, and it gets in your face
But somehow they can't take you down

Too many questions, nobody answers
And I need some truth here tonight
And all that you run from, somehow it finds you
And a little bit of poison still makes you strong
Oh yeah

Now you're sick but safe with me
You've been keeping it to yourself for too long
And the world is still waiting to see
All the beautiful crazy things you've become

And you're a little bit more than I ever did see
Now you're bigger than life and a little bit free
You know what you want and you get what you need
But something you said to me

Too many questions, nobody answers
And I need some truth here tonight
And all that you run from, somehow it finds you
And a little bit of poison still makes you strong

You wanna deny all of the lies
But don't try to hide them from me
You wanna find what you left behind
For the need to make a scene
You better run to me

Too many questions, nobody answers
And I need some truth here tonight
And all that you run from, somehow it finds you
And a little bit of poison still makes you strong
