Love was young
We saw beyond a sky that had no limits
Much higher than the highest star
Beyond the furthest planet
We thought that we could change the world and everything in it
But time ran out of endless hours
Gave into doubt, were we just playing an endless game
That no one ever wins

If I could run away, hide away
Forget the way feel
But your memory keeps haunting me
Convincing me it's real
Now you're not here
Now you're not here

Love and hate, left up to fate
A life we took for granted
We couldn't stop our running from the things we always wanted
No long goodbyes, no tears to cry
And nothing to believe in
But now you're gone
We'll never know a love that's grown, time took away
All that it gave to the two of us

If I could run away, hide away
Forget the way I feel
But your memory keeps haunting me
Convincing me it's real
Now you're not here
Now you're not here

When our hearts were young and nights were long
We'd let the morning sun kiss our eyes open Precious dreams that we had now they are dead and gone
The promises we made have all been broken

If I could run away, hide away
Forget the way I feel

But your memory keeps haunting me
Convincing me it's real
Now you're not here
Now you're not here

In my arms, in my life
Lovin' you, is just a memory
Now you're not here
Now you're not here
With me now, in my arms, in my mind, in my life
