I walk these streets
All paved with dirt and dreams
Wishing the rain would come
And wash my sadness clean

I work these city nights
All bound in love and lies
And when the lights go out
The darkness lets me cry

And when the morning comes
You'll soon be gone
Your heart belongs with someone somewhere
Forgotten smiles don't come much higher
You'll realise that you won't feel a thing

I breathe this city air
There's traffic in my veins
And if my heart survives
I'm sure to lose my mind
I love this city life
Lost in this trip I'm in
Still waiting for my turn
A life long been and gone
Long been and gone
Long been and gone
You won't feel a thing

When morning comes you'll be soon gone
Your heart belongs with someone somewhere
Laughing
When morning comes you'll be soon gone
Your heart belongs with someone somewhere
Laughing
When morning comes you'll be soon gone
Your heart belongs with someone somewhere
Laughing

Forgotten smiles don't come much higher
You'll realise that you won't even feel a thing
When morning comes you'll be soon gone
Your heart belongs with someone somewhere

Laughing
And smiling
Laughing
And dancing
Singing
