What can fill your heart till it breaks
Make you dream when you're wide awake
What could fill your whole life time through
Though it doesn't belong to you
Whoever you are, wherever you go
Will I meet you there and how will I know

When you can't hear for listening
When you can't see a single thing
When you don't care what's happening
You already know

What's a feeling that can't be touched
What's a pleasure that hurts so much
Like a promise that you can't break
What can steal every breath you take
Whoever we are, whenever we touch
Will love disappear if we take too much

When you can't hear for listening
When you can't see a single thing
When you don't care what's happening
You already know

When the night doesn't let you sleep
When you can't find the words to speak
When this secrets too much to keep
You already know

And when love surrounds you
There'll be no reason to even explain
No reason to explain

What's a secret that we can't keep
When a secrets too much to keep
You already know
You know when you know
You already know
When love disappears

You already know
Already know

You already know
