At this road that im crossing, I find myself standing still
If you hold your breath too long, and stay underwater
It could be enough to kill I've walked this road too long, and I've known that its
wrong
But I'll lie to myself how I always do
But your fire inside, is leaving you paralyzed
And I think that it's catching on to me too

You say, things that you won't even admit to yourself
You just get, fucked up and run around telling everyone else

So I think that I'll join you, I don't need to wait outside Till someone invites me to stand in line hoping to be the next to Drink away my feelings and forget whats left of you I've walked this road too long, and I've known that its
wrong
But I'll lie to myself how I always do
But your fire inside, is leaving you paralyzed
And I think that it's catching on to me too

You say, things that you won't even admit to yourself
You just get, fucked up and run around telling
everyone else
I've walked this road too long, and I've known that its
wrong
But I'll lie to myself how I always do
But your fire inside, is leaving you paralyzed
And I think that it's catching on to me too
I could wait here for years, finding nothing to fear
Hoping the world dies outside my door
And if this doesn't end, ill just try to pretend
That I never aspired for, anything more
