It gets tough and lonely sometimes,
And your spirit's barely holding on.
What could I say to make you stay?
What would I give? To bring the Truth to you.

I could give you all the moments
That your sunlight chased away my clouds.
But talking will be the death of me.
I won't speak, just send my love your way.

Well, you're waiting for salvation, it is waiting for you,
too.
And when life is at its darkest, then the heart will pull you through.
So let love go, in all you know...
And let love in.

Summertime would see you crying,
And your heart knew something had to give.
You'll never deny the truths you find.
You'll hang on tight to a friend you can adore.

Some may offer sanctuary, give you counsel from the years.
And when life is at it's darkest, you can fight away the tears,
So let love go in all you know...
And let love in.

Oh oh oh whooa
Oh oh oh whooa
