

Flames In "World Of Promises"

They come from a land where the sun don't shine running away from the cold

They travel so far in the name of love hoping the dreams will come true

Walking the way through endless fields trying to make it together

And they will give anything just to be free from the pain and they won't surrender

Living in a world of promises

Living in a world of dreams and hopes

Living in a world of promises

Lost in the city wondering why no one will open the door

It's more to the truth than meets the eye something they all felt before

And they will give anything

just to stand tall once again

and they won't surrender

Living in a world of promises

Living in a world of dreams and hopes

Living in a world of promises

In the tan of the nigh can hear them crying out for a life to hol on to Somebody knows were the answers lying wait for your trails and dont let go

Living in a world of promises

Living in a world of dreams and hopes

Living in a world of promises
