I can't escape the sinking feeling that everything is broken in the beginning where it falls apart the consumption of the things that comfort A product that is taking Precedence over a life
mindless indulgence
to gain contentment
with whats inside
Temporary serenity
selling out to live a life

to break to buy
to find a center
to be a slave
so insecure
offset intent
sell it away
to gain control
and feel secure
broken disaster
barded existence

loaded in a cycle
aggressive in the response to a motion within a system caving in to my frustration I've claimed it all
now it's gone
selling out to live and die

Now I'm broken

a thousand new broken parts in the end where it falls apart braking without support caught up in the ties that bind indentured into bonds and stocks stocks that bind and break the locks this sanity is of no use until i can afford something new
