so here's your feature presentation the lights are down and the spotlight's on me will i screw up and make this a tragedy or will i make you laugh and save this as a comedy this play seems so familiar i swear i've heard this script before when every day feels like its yesterday i find myself wanting something more and when the credits begin to roll will i see your name next to mine did you help me end that boring and ordinary day that just wouldn't fade away these days are old and stale i'm waiting for something monumental to happen these days are old and stale i'm waiting for me and you to happen this day seems so familiar i swear we've done this all before why don't we stop living like yesterday and turn what we have into something more?
