I woke up last night, you know I must have been dreaming

I heard voices and noises and all kind of screaming

The wind was howling outside my door

I'm afraid to get out of my bed anymore

There's not a cloud in the sky but there's a storm inside
my head

There's a storm inside, a storm inside my head

Crashing thunder and pounding rain

There's an icy chill running through my veins

Won't look in the closet, won't open the door

I'm not gonna leave this room anymore

There's not a cloud in the sky but there's a storm inside
my head

There's a storm inside, a storm inside my head

It seems I'm always going up, always comin' down

Either way I'm going, my head is spinning 'round

One too many dreams, and two too many pills

If the first one don't get you, the second one will

Not a cloud in the sky but there's a storm inside my head

There's a storm inside, a storm inside

a storm inside, a storm inside

a storm inside, a storm inside my head
