There's that feeling when you wake up.
When you know that you've slept in.
You just want to turn around and cover up.
And let the day go on, and on, and on...

Heavy head up you know that it's time.
The day's been a bloomin' but you know you're just assumin
that everything will wait.
And Damn it just feels great.

And all the world today it will come to you.
Whenever you feel ready you can push resume.
You know you own your time.
You should never feel confined to reality.

So all those times that you feel
That everything won't be alright.
Just give time a little space
And take one day and let yourself catch up.

Cause we're all just humans trying to make life work.
And everyday the battle goes on and on.

You know you own your time.
you should never feel confined to reality...
