I'm running out of reasons for caring about the other half

I think my half wants a little more pride

I'm running out of reasons for sharing sometimes I can't think of one

I'm running out of faces that I can call familiar

Hey man, I'm running out of friends that I can call at all How long have I been sleeping, why the hell am I awake?

It seems just to stand here, is overkill

If I bend any farther, I swear that I'll break

And I think you should let me, it all seems so perfect, yet

Some people, some people get lonely, some people, they just grow older

And scared of a little pain and we people, we cause a commotion

We didn't mean to be confused, we didn't mean to be alive

And we don't want to be standing here, standing here How long have we been sleeping, why the hell are we awake?

It seems just to stand here, is overkill

If I bend any farther, I swear that I'll break

We ask and we burn what we hear, on the water

And we speak, we burn what we say but if you hold the rain

It's just a little further, don't wanna scare you, don't be unhappy

This is not a love song, this is not a love song

unhappy

This is not a love song, this is not a love song
