Take that feeling deep down your stomach
And set it to the side, cause you know it's unavoidable
You're going to have to take this at least for the time
Well all that's on your mind is the task at hand

And I never thought it would last this long
Was I wrong to think we would be alright this long?

We were searching for the cure
The cure for what's to come

It's the feeling that comes back to haunt you when you last expected
A time when we could focus on things more important to us in the long run
Lets just forget it, and live for the day

We were searching for the cure
The cure for what's to come
Will we see it in our heads is how we'll beat it What's to come, what's to come we won't ever find a cure
