so easy...something so simple as to not care what separates us from the outside world. who becomes another cog in the machine? the promise that rings true the first two months then it fades into obscurity with the rest of them... with the rest of them. a barrier erected between people where there should be none. saved by sincerity. perpetuated year after year. a simple solution to care. give me a glimmer of hope... hope. nothing so bright but it will scare us both. a simple solution to care, is it so difficult?
