It's time we take our lives for what they are We're always searching for something more, than what we can Let go and seize the time, the time you have

Lovely, I've longed for you To have something to hold onto I've been waiting for far too long But now my heart has grown too strong Forgive me now, it's not what I mean

And all of my time is spent just wondering where you are, or where you'll Be
It seems to me that we'd be better off to just let go and move on

Faith has got it's way, into the hearts of the willing You sit and stare, at nothing, waiting for something to come your way

We have come, between the both of us, there is not enough
We followed the path before us
