In streams of anxiety I catch a breath of present time And open a hidden door in a floor with the imprinted hand
Once again I begin a night descent toward my cellar worlds
Where the past of milion shadows plays with silent calmness
I dive strenously in an element of unwanted visions Painted with pangs of conscience, fed with sadness And helpless I stand among demons from the former life
The one tragically led ina treadmill of inhuman cruelty

Detested by the enemy, condemned by my co-brothers I carry my burden of loneliness through the striped crowd
I pass dreams, hopes, I proceed among bitterness and tears Unceasingly closing eyes of those who desire the sunrise

I silence my heart, forget the prayers, reject all thoughts
As I live in the irreversibleness of stupor just to last I welcome trust, surprise, I say goodbye to faith and pride
And I write down the tragedy of humankind turned to dust

Being dead alive I await stepping out of the row
A moment of last crossing the hellish threshold Eternal chimneys don't forgive their foster sons Ant they consume the testimony of extermination system

Devastated by the claims of abstract past I am awaking to reality created in shade Where from a victim of humanity burying times
I become an executioner in eyes of justice Weary of life I examine myself in a mirror of sorrow
And my senile reflection is flowing with the last tear

Ready for meeting faces faded long ago by time I join the rest of the damned from Sonderkommando

Here comes the time to dream
