It's so hard not to blame you it's hard not to put all the blame on you 'cause you knew from the start there was one little part you would not let through I'm sure there were even moments when you thought You might someday finish what you'd begun - but that could've been anyone could've been anyone I lost my place in the sun well, never mind
it could've been anyone.
So we all make mistakes it just figures you'd make me the biggest one I was saving it up now it's spent and I don't know what I spent it on now I find if you try hard enough you can wear it down 'til it's just about gone - 'til you could've been anyone you could've been anyone lost your place in the sun
could've been anyone.
Your pattern is different than what it implies the words may be true but I realize - it isn't description so much as disguise.
Don't worry, you can learn to live without you've got a lifetime of that to draw upon and anyway -
you lost your place in the sun
oh, you lost your place in the sun
well, never mind
never mind never mind (I think that's enough now)
