I'll go out at night to old familiar places
Look around and maybe see a friend or two
And your image won't be there in all their faces
I won't fall apart if they should mention you

I won't spend my time forgetting or forgiving
Or lie awake and long for you the whole night through
I may even find a reason to be living
Just as soon as I get over loving you

I'll be in somebody's arms when I awaken to hold me
Just the way you used to do
I won't think about the one whose place he's taken
Just as soon as I get over loving you
Just as soon as I get over loving you
