this is the closest to this friend that i've been

i hope you find it on greener ground and bluer skies i hope you dont think less of me if i'm cold i dont want to watch you go i'll cry until i see the whites of your eyes for two more years

we'll be old enough to know better, young enough to pretend

this is the last of my letters i hope i find my home and i hope you're the first one in it i know it won't be the same i'll be there if you need anything at all you want to be run around the world with me state your distance but it's not a million miles away if this is what will really make you happy then i'll say that we'll be old enough to know better, young enough to pretend this is the last of my letters until I see you again
