Can you spare me a quarter?
though I have no one to call?
I just thought it might save my ass one day?
if the sky or the free world were to fall?
this is the only thing that I can do?
this is the only thing I know how to say?
and when everything is gone?
and the night it seems grows long?
will you play this record anyway?
there are a million ways to say it?
there are a million lies to choose from?
you might find that your head is stuck?
no one's going to bail us out of this one?

Every time I call your name?
somehow I wish it was the same?
for me and you and all the things we do?
not in vain?

Maybe I could give you a ride?
though I don't really own a car?
well it isn't anything so different?
than living underneath a dying star?
well this is what we all get up for?
when the clocks go out of time?
cause nothing short of?
war and death and money?
will ever fucking change your mind?
there are a million ways to die son?
and there are a million places to choose from?

Every time I call your name?
somehow I wish it was the same?
and who will kill this native son?
who will learn from everything that we have done?

and who will we get to stand up for tomorrow??
