She's going to be dancing soon,
stepping out of her winter, into June.
Lying in fields, spring has the life;
she wants a new one.

So, spirit, please lead your child home;
bring to her eyes the god she has grown.
Spirit, please lead your child home.

She came to America in 1921,
and in this new world she had my mom.
One hundred years, now she believes that her time has come.

So, spirit, please lead your child home;
bring to her eyes the god she has grown.
Spirit, please lead your child home.
Home... yeah.
