When she wakes up early
There's a sound outside her window
These things that it's she's feeling
When the break starts screaming poison

She's gotta have a break today
No things is brand overwhelming
That's the weight you have to carry
And it's only cause you're worried

Yesterday, this was a trailerpark
Now I can't see what it is
Maybe I have changed, maybe it's the rain
Maybe it's the rush of things

Down behind the counter
Certain time and drinks to face it
Only know her by her first name
Lift her glasses from the table

If there was a way
To say all of this and me now
Get the car, just stop driving
Every road leads to the ocean

Yesterday, this was a trailerpark
Now I can't see what it is
Maybe I have changed, maybe it's the rain
Maybe it's the rush of things
