

Tea Party "Chimera"

Visit "Chimera" on MotoLyrics.com

You say it's all about intention
A chimera in disguise, its about your life, the greed
The loneliness it needs now
Just to say you've claimed the prize of letting go

You say it's all about your virtue now
Like a harlequin of shame
You look around, you hear the sound
Your intentions gone aground now
Because it's all about the fame

And now you're letting go
But it's a little late
There's little time to show

So tell me now
Would you do it all again?
Could you do it all again?

You say it's all about forgiveness now
Well, you can grovel if you'd like but turn around
Do you hear that sound?
That's integrity gone aground now in the name of sacrifice

And now you're letting go
But it's a little late
There's little time to show

So tell me now
Would you do it all again?
Could you do it all again?
Would you do it all again?

Would you do it all again?
Could you do it all again?
Would you do it all again?
Would you do it all again?

Visit Tea Party page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.

