I'll show you the door when you've
Decided to hold on to all that you've lost
You see, all this is nothing
When she comes and tears you apart

Of course, all this is nothing
If you hold the key to her heart

I told you, I am your savior and your truth
When you get down on the floor
I will steal the soul from you if there is no truth
Let's end this lie tonight

When the thirteenth apostle
Is knocking at my door
A new sun is rising in the east
Did I tell you that?

It's true, so sing throughout the streets
And sing throughout the night.
Go and tell the people my soul is aflight
Although you might save me from

All these emotions that are filling my mind
All of your healers are still hurting my kind
I will watch what the rain blows in
And I will continue to tell people
That a climb to the holy land is a slide to the devil's hand

Something is going to change these times
And I'll watch them fade away
So if they want to keep me hung on their crosses
They'll have to find some bigger nails

I will continue to walk these streets like a doubting
Thomas
And I'll swear at saints when they pass me by Nothing is pure when everything is tainted
Where am I going to go when I die

So you see, I'll try to let you go

And I'll try very hard to forget
I don't think my thought will subside
I guess I'm just losing my mind

I'm walking alone, I'm standing in the sun
I'm thinking about my life
And how it's barely just begun
I want to run
